You hold the universe in your hands and sustain it by your will and power. Thank you for being who you are Abba, Father, the way, the truth, and the life. Thank you for treating us with mercy and grace though we are unworthy of such compassion and love. Thank you for putting food on our tables and clothes on our bodies and roofs over our heads. Forgive us when we take these things for granted and disregard those who often go without. Thank you for blessing this nation with freedoms not enjoyed in other parts of the world and for the liberty to pursue our dreams, and the resources to help those who struggle. In your word we are told to pray for those in authority so that we may live peaceful and quiet lives in all godliness and holiness. I lift up the men and the women in this room today. They've been given a great responsibility to lead our state, chosen to represent the needs and the interests of the families in their communities. Dear God, give these elected officials a sagacious spirit. Let them lead not out of a desire for personal achievement or greed or power or wealth, but because they have a heart for the welfare of the people of this state. Give them the eyes to see the struggles for the poor, the broken, the marginalized. Give them the ears to listen to the outcast, the disenfranchised, and the powerless. Give them the words to speak for the voiceless, the forgotten, and the unseen. Give them courage to stand for what is right and just and honorable and true. Give them the boldness to put justice before partiality, cooperation before partisanship, and unity before divisiveness. Dear Father, I cannot imagine the stress and the pressure that's placed upon those who have been called to serve this great state. They must sacrifice time away from family and home, separated from their loved ones, countless hours in meetings and attempting to do what is best for the citizens of this state while at the same time working to find common ground with those who are on the other side of the political aisle. Bless them, dear God, with your peace, your compassion, your mercy, and commemoration of this occasion. On May 10, 1869, the golden spike was hammered into place joining the Western and Central Pacific Railroads and signaling the completion of the first Transcontinental Railroad. This event ushered in a new era of industry, commerce, and communication and helped to catapult the United States into its position as the leading global superpower. The impact of the Transcontinental Railroad on revolutionizing transportation cannot be understated. It transformed a six month journey to one week and reduced the cost from $1 thousand to $150. The achievements of this massive project were impressive, however, they could not have occurred without the recruitment of thousands of immigrant workers. The Transcontinental Railroad spans over 1,900 miles and required the building of over 50 bridges and trestles, 15 tunnels through the most challenging terrain. Industrialists in particular recruited thousands of Chinese workers to assist in the construction of the railroad. These laborers who made up more than 80 percent of the western workforce were paid substandard wages, faced grueling hours, and extremely brutal conditions in order to lay the hundreds of miles of track. While working on the Transcontinental Railroad, estimates of Chinese worker deaths range from the hundreds to the thousands. A Resolution is forthcoming and we aim to recognize the efforts of those who overcame unimaginably harsh conditions to make the United States the global powerhouse it is today. While we cannot ever adequately compensate for the lives lost, we can seek to remember and uphold their legacy. I hope that you will all join me in supporting this Resolution that is forthcoming that will

Speaker Manley: "Thank you, Representative. The Chair recognizes Representative Scherer. For what reason do you seek recognition?"
