Senator Villivalam, for what purpose do you rise?

SENATOR VILLIVALAM:

A -- a point of personal privilege, Mr. President.

PRESIDING OFFICER: (SENATOR LINK)

State your point.

SENATOR VILLIVALAM:

As the first Asian American in the Illinois State Senate, the first Indian American in the Illinois General Assembly, I wanted to bring your attention to the significance of today, March 5th, 2019. Today we celebrate Asian American and Pacific Islander Women's Equal Pay Day. It took Asian American and Pacific Islander women all of 2018 plus the two months and five days that have passed thus far in 2019 to earn what Caucasian males earned in 2018 alone. AAPI women live in -- at the intersection of racial discrimination and economic justice {sic}. Last year, AAPI women made between eighty-five to fifty cents for every dollar a white -- what Caucasian males took home. Hmong and Cambodian women earn on average only fifty {sic} (fifty-seven) cents and sixty cents to the white -- to the Caucasian male dollar, respectively. Widespread acceptance of the "model minority" contributes to the continued gender wage gap and lack of resources funneled to the AAPI community, especially women. Members of the AAPI community are assumed to experience greater social -- socioeconomic background and stability than their white -- their white counterparts. This is far from the truth. The widely believed model minority myth makes advocating for AAPI wage discrepancies nearly impossible, and leads to legislators like us overlooking the crucial, lifesaving programs that protect and support AAPI communities. And we know the statistics are even -- more grim for women of other ethnic and racial backgrounds as well. While today we bring awareness to our AAPI women, next month we will talk about the wage gap for women of all backgrounds. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR KOEHLER:

If I could have everybody's attention, we've got a special momentous occasion here. The House just passed a resolution honoring Mary Patton. You know her as a volunteer with AARP. Mary has spent twenty years working as a volunteer. She's now eighty-two years young and she's still working as a volunteer. She's an outspoken champion on policies regarding elder abuse and financial exploitation. She has been twenty years representing Peoria County and the AARP as a member of the Peoria County Human Services Transportation Plan Steering Committee. One fact that they didn't mention in the House is that Mary is the one person that beat me in an election in 1984, when we both ran for Auditor, and she wiped me out. So... Yeah, thanks for... But she's been a friend for --

of the robocall issues that so many of our constituents are being hit with and with spoofing, where now these -- these mostly overseas companies are -- are adjusting your cell phone phone numbers so when you answer the phone it looks like it's a local phone call when it's really not.
